Sample Answer:

Smog is a big problem in our city, making it hard to breathe and see. Every winter, a thick layer of smog covers our city, causing many health issues. The main reason for smog is the pollution from vehicles, factories, and burning of waste. When the wind is slow, the pollutants get trapped in the air, forming smog. This makes it difficult for people to go outside and enjoy activities. Many people in our city suffer from respiratory problems, such as asthma and coughing, due to smog. The government is trying to reduce smog by implementing rules like odd-even traffic and increasing the number of CNG buses. We can also help by planting more trees, using public transport, and reducing waste. By working together, we can make our city's air cleaner and healthier to breathe.

In classrooms, teachers use different models to help students understand topics better. These models can be physical, like a globe, or visual, like charts and diagrams. Science teachers use models of the solar system, human body, and volcanoes to explain concepts easily. Math teachers use 3D shapes to teach geometry. In history and geography, maps and historical models help students learn about different places and events. Models make learning fun and interactive. They help students see and touch what they are learning, making lessons more interesting. Using models in class improves understanding and memory. Every subject benefits from models, and they help students become more engaged and curious learners.

Colors brighten our world and touch our hearts every day. Red shows love and energy, like a warm hug or exciting games. Blue brings calm and peace, reminding us of the sky and sea. Green means growth and nature, making us feel fresh and alive. Yellow sparks joy and sunshine, lifting our spirits when we feel down. Colors help us express feelings, celebrate festivals, and even stay safe on roads with traffic lights. Artists use them to create beautiful paintings, and they make our clothes and homes look cheerful. Different cultures have special colors for happy events like weddings. Without colors, life would feel dull and gray. So let's cherish every shade they paint our days with happiness, hope, and wonder.

Sample Answer:

Teamwork is when we work together to get things done. It helps us make friends and learn to talk and listen to each other. When we work in a team, we can share ideas and help each other solve problems. Teamwork also teaches us to be responsible because everyone has a job to do. We feel happy when we help our friends and they help us too. Working together can make learning fun and exciting. It also builds trust because we know we can count on each other. Teamwork is important in school, in games, and even when we grow up.

Doctors lead highly disciplined lives to save lives and help patients. They wake up early, even before sunrise, to prepare for long hospital shifts. Discipline means following strict schedules, checking patient records, attending meetings, and performing surgeries on time. They study new medical research daily to stay updated and skilled. During emergencies, doctors remain calm and focused, making quick decisions without panic. They maintain healthy habits like eating balanced meals and exercising to stay fit for their demanding work. Even after tiring days, they review cases carefully to avoid mistakes. They also keep their workspaces clean and organized to prevent infections. Discipline helps doctors earn trust from patients and colleagues. It turns challenges into success and ensures every life under their care receives the best attention. A disciplined doctor is truly a hero who brings healing through dedication and order.

Item Rubric (English) :

Sample answer

An alarm clock is a handy device that helps us wake up in the morning. It is a small clock with a loud sound that goes off at a set time. It also has hands that move to indicate the hours and minutes. When it's time to wake up, the alarm clock makes a beeping or ringing noise. We set the alarm by turning a dial or pressing buttons to choose the desired time. Alarm clocks are placed near our bed, so we can hear the sound and wake up on time. They help us start our day and get ready for school. They help us to be punctual. With the help of an alarm clock, we can manage our time and be responsible. It is a great invention of modern times.
